

Same note value don't have the same space within the same line (with or without accidentals). Of course it is different in Scroll View, but we do all print our music from Page View.

Additional space should only be given when needed. In this case, ledger line are awfully distorting two measures that should look similar.

When the stem direction changes from up to down, stems look too close, because Finale only counts from notehead to notehead (incl. accidental/ledger line).

We need a setting for such tight situations. Then it should look like this instead:
